

A Letter from the Editors

Dear Pathways Reader,

We are proudly announcing our 2024 publication of Pathways: Stanford Journal of Public Health!

This edition brings together incredible works and reflections by authors from various academic institutions, including Stanford University and John Hopkins University. From evaluating the community history of the Iraqi-Chaldean community and their journey to achieving culturally-competent healthcare to finding a deepened meaning in medical research through an impactful loss of an author's family member, our published manuscripts offer a diversity of public health conversations — with impact ranging from personal to international potential.

Articles are organized into three sections of Pathways: Exploration & Innovation (showcasing research and tools on current issues and outcomes), Governance (introducing potential and current policy-based approaches to improving health and well-being), and Reflections (sharing personal narratives, stories, and experiences). With our rolling issue, we also hope to feature our Alumni Words of Wisdom series in the near future.

Thank you to Professor Grant Miller and Professor Catherine Heaney for offering to serve as continued exceptional advisors to Pathways since its inception. We would like to send our immense appreciation to Professor John Willinsky for his technical mentorship in maintaining the Journal's online presence.

As always, we invite Stanford community members (undergraduate students, graduate students, professors, and faculty), college students, healthcare professionals, policy leaders, and scholars to submit your work to Pathways. We stay committed to providing a central source of public health research that discusses meaningful topics and insights gained from years of experience.

Sincerely,
Pathways 2024 Editorial Team
